

Oslo International Timber Conference 2022

Oslo International Timber Conference will be held on June 14th and 15th at Kulturhuset in Oslo. It is an arena which brings together the latest from the world of timber architecture including technical innovative solutions, modern use of timber and award-winning architecture.

This year's topic is Modular and Technical timber structures. We will investigate the potential of building with prefabricated and modular timber constructions.

On June 14th a walkthrough of Hasle Tre, a demountable office building, will be organized, followed by 2 interesting evening lectures:

- Gerhard Feldmeyer, HPP Architekten, will present The Cradle, a hybrid timber building in Dusseldorf, designed after the Cradle-to-Cradle® concept.
- MARS ARCHITECTES will talk about the prefabricated Japanese-inspired apartment building in Avenue de Saint-Mandé, built in the courtyard of a housing project from the 1970s in Paris.

On June 15th there will be a main program with interesting and varying lectures:

- The architects Sauerbruch Hutton will present the modular office structure Luisenblock and the modular student housing Woodie.
- Kaufmann Bausysteme will talk about concepts regarding modular and prefabricated buildings.
- Blumer Lehmann will show their modular timber schools.
- Einar Jarmund will present the modular apartment building in Hafjell.
- Neue Holzbau will talk about projects from a large and varied timber portfolio of advanced timber structures and timber connections.
- Tall Wood will show the office building Tamango, in addition to other projects.
- Weissenrieder Architekten together with Holzbau Kaiser will present Buggi52.

The event is for architects, engineers, entrepreneurs and real estate developers.

If you are interested in the future of timber and timber structures, you don't want to miss this event.
